COMPANION TO WALDIE'S LI-4 BRARY.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Libradiscovered that there was still something wanting-that many occurrences in the lite rary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan. To establish a fuller medium of communica ion and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was added; which we have reason to believe has afforded general LETTERS. satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown oher desiderata which the "Companion" estended to supply. While reading for the "Library" a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magaziniane, interspersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterlies. To publish every thing of this ature which we deem desirable would encreach too much on the columns of the "Liorary" designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret. centrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines. Se. &c &c. the "Companion to Walle" Library" will be offered to the patrenage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the "Library." the "Journal," and the "Companion," such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for scribing, and having fewer people in deal with, mistakes are less liable to after, and more readily corrected when they do. short interval of two weeks between the pubication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and

THE Subscriber proposes to publish, in Upper perioro', Prince George's county, arliand, a weekly journal, to be called THE BULLETIN.

In andertaking to supply this acknowledgddsileratum to the populous and intelline to reside, his hope of ultimate sucas indenot its origin in sanguineness of tep-ranent, but proceeds from the eminent strategys of its location. Published in the strapplis of a large and wealthy county, sit util equi-distint from the State and Names il cipitals, facilities of an early commumitten of whatever may interest its patrons, eparticularly afforded to the Editor; and many not hope to present to his made much foreign information through the melian of his columns, not derivable from repartants, it is still certain that intelli-ace of a local nature, interesting to all, limportant to many, and otherwise unatnile, will by this means be communicated all also offer to those whose means are indefate to the expense of the larger jourertant information they contain; and he ists that those of literary taste may someines find in its columns, articles not unworty of the employment of their leisure. As the plan of every publication which is to find kircess in popular support, must first be mysel before public patronage can be exected, the Editor would here mark the out-med his design, with the full knowledge termine both its merit and the fidelity of b prosecution. The Editor proposes to adapt his paper to the nesof those by whom he is immediately surunded, and among whom he must naturalfind a majority of his patrons: he know ea to be intelligent and inquiring .--The terary department, shall, therefore, be ashansly regarded, and the most approved assuc and foreign periodicals resorted to whelles lettres notices. He knows them to patriotic, and that they feel a deep interest is the welfare of our common country. To party this sentiment to the extent of his abikty, his columns shall afford whatever intelliprice of a political character may be calcula let to interest them. No man, with the fa htit will constitute an ordeal, by which, to culty of thought, is at this crisis neutral in reagiathis country, and the Editor does not wish disquise his political sentiments -they are dupposition to the incodures of the present Atministration. But having neither the temer nor the motive of a partisate, his comments bifrankness of argument, not violence or abuse and as it naver has been his practice, so shall terer become his habit to deal in political arective or party virulence. He will cheer-tily lend the aid of his columns to communi lous from all parties-reserving to himself he privilege of rejecting such as are objectionable for personal allusion or indecorous lanfrize. In addition to the advantages of ap-populate political and literary selectious, he trust alse to tempt into exercise whatever of after talent may surround him, and with such in paper useful and interesting. He asks but the patronage of his friends longer than but the patronage of his friends longer than his efforts merit and repay it, as he wishes not have that favour to personal feeling, which ruld be denied to his editorial labors.
